With its positive effects on concentration, green is a great application for libraries, where students can decompress and focus. A wide variety of seating applications and micro-touch down spaces allow the space to have multiple purposes to support student needs.

STEAM

A non-traditional classroom with a range of postures and spaces to connect with teachers and other students. "STEAM Spaces" can be multi-modal environments that balance individual and group needs. These are great spaces to combine color and comfort to promote creativity and community within the classroom especially in the future of education post pandemic.

Keep students engaged in the classroom with color. In small doses, yellow can be effective in maintaining the students' awareness in the classroom. Classrooms with creative layouts and eye-catching furniture accomplish so many things. They can help students relax and concentrate and have also been shown to reduce anxiety and stress.

Social spaces' and corridors' provide a variety of spaces that foster discovery and collaboration. Hallways and reception areas are a great place to be "free" with color and design. Use these spaces to show off the school's colors and logos to create a sense of pride and identity.
